

WANTED

Sometimes people who are looking to adopt a pet write ads describing the type of pet they are hoping to find. Other times, adults write want ads if they are looking to find a friend. Pretend that you are trying to make a new friend. Write an ad that describes a friend you would like to find. Think about what age you would like this person to be. What personality traits are you looking for in a friend? What kind of person do you think would make a great friend? Are there any activities that you would like to share with this new friend? If you spend a lot of time rollerblading, you might want a friend to share this activity with you. Think about all the things you need in a good friend. A minimum of 5 sentences is required.

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, intended for students to write their advertisement for a friend. The box is completely blank and occupies the lower two-thirds of the page.
